BREAD REBELLION MENACES ALL GERMANY

THOUSANDS ARE IN DESPERATION TODAY, UNABLE TO BUY LOAF

Men and Women Storm Bread Wagons in Factory District in Berlin; Erroneous Fixing of the Price of Foodstuff at 140,000,000,000 Marks

A Week's Wages in Many Cases Only Sufficient to Buy Two Loaves of Bread, Scale of Weekly Wage Ranging from 250,000,000,000 to 500,000,000,000 Marks

(By United Press)

Berlin, Nov. 5.—Danger of a bread rebellion in big cities menaced Germany today as the army completed preparations to combat any aggressive moves by Bavarian Fascisti.

Thousands of families were in desperation as they found themselves unable to buy bread today.

Long lines of hungry people waiting for bread early today broke in despair and rushed the shops.

Many had been without bread since Saturday, owing to the erroneous fixation of the price at 140,000,000,000 paper marks instead of at the lower official figure.

Five hundred desperate men and women rushed bread wagons in a factory district. Having been out of work for a long time, their desperation lead them to attack so strongly police were helpless before them.

Finally a commandant of storm troops took control of the police, brought them into formation and sent them dashing against the crowd. The hungry unemployed fell back and scattered, leaving many of the bolder ones still struggling helplessly in the hands of the police.

Many bakeries kept the price of bread at 140,000,000,000 marks over the week end owing to an erroneous report that the price had been so fixed. It represented 33 cents according to the Berlin official mark quotation.

A week's wages only averaged between 250,000,000,000 and 500,000,000,000 marks and the sudden jump left many families unable to buy even two loaves for a whole week.

Bread was the sole cry in Berlin and other large cities today despite activities of the irregular army organizations along the Bavarian border.

The federal government continued to move secretly, however, to place its troops in defensive positions along the Thuringian border. If the threatened march of the military organizations scattered along the Bavarian north frontier develops, it was expected the first rush would be into Thuringian.

AIM TO RESUME WORK IN THE RUHR

Paris, Nov. 5.—Negotiations between industrialists and French occupation authorities for an agreement for resumption of work upon the Ruhr will be ready for signing Thursday, a dispatch from Dusseldorf said today.

Conversations between the industrialists lead by Hugo Stinnes were continuing in Dusseldorf today.

The basis of the agreement was expected to be that France would require:

1. Payment of arrears of coal taxes up to a minimum of $15,000,000,000.

2. That there would be a regular payment of ten francs a ton as a tax on future deliveries, and

3. That there would be an immediate resumption of reparations payments in return.

Payments in turn means delivery in various kinds of goods or raw products in place of actual cash.

FANS STUNNED AS ZEV FALTERS IN

Latonia, Nov. 5.—There was joy in Kentucky Saturday night and bon fires were burning. A Kentucky racehorse had shown himself the master of an international titleholder in the running of the $50,000 Latonia championship stakes at the Latonia course. In Memoriam is the name of the thoroughbred all the Blue Grass region is proclaiming and Carl Weidermann, a Newport, Ky., sportsman, is owner.

Six lengths back of In Memoriam's flying heels came Zev, America's wonder horse, faltering and reeling, his crown tottering and crushing as the great race ended.

Ten lengths behind Zev completely out of it, floundered Admiral T. Grayson's My Own, regarded by many as the lone American rival to the horse which had so decisively beaten Papyrus, the champion of England, two weeks ago.

It wasn't a finish, but a parade, as the climax in the so-called race of the ages over the gruelling mile and three-quarters route arrived. And it was a shock to the 40,000 spectators who had stood in the rain throughout a gloomy November afternoon expecting to see a two horse struggle with Zev and My Own the contenders.

MURDERER OF SCHOOL GIRL

BELIEVED HIDING IN DEPTHS OF A COAL MINE IN ALBERTA, CANADA

(By United Press)

Lethbridge, Albert, Nov. 5. — The murderer of pretty Winnie Tollerstrup, Raymond school girl, is hiding in the black depths of a coal mine, Royal Canadian mounted police believed today.

Joe Blackhorse, fullblood Indian, is suspected of the crime. He disappeared Friday after delivering a ton of coal to the Tollerstrup home near here.

Winnie, winsome 16 year old miss and beauty queen of the district, was alone at the farm when Blackhorse delivered the coal. Her father returned from town to find pools of blood about the house and his daughter's shattered wrist watch outside.

Neighbors later recalled having seen a haystack on Arthur Dahl's farm burning that afternoon. Buried eight feet deep in the smoking stack, they found the mutilated body of the little girl. The body was partly burned.

No trace was found of Blackhorse. He and four brothers ran the coal mine near Raymond. Search of the surrounding territory and the reservation revealed no trace of the Indian. Heavily armed mounted police, provincial police and citizens prepared to enter the depths of the mine, believing the Indian is hiding there.

REP. MADDEN OF ILLINOIS IS THE AUTHOR OF PLAN

WANTS NEW POWER PLANT SIMILAR TO GORGAS PLANT RECENTLY SOLD

ITS BUILDING, SAYS MADDEN, WOULD GAIN A NEW BID FROM HENRY FORD

(By United Press)

Washington, Nov. 5.—President Coolidge today was urged by Representative Madden, Illinois, chairman of the house appropriations committee to support a plan to have the government build a new power plant at Muscle Shoals similar to the Gorgas plant recently sold to the Alabama Power company.

The project of building the new plant would be, Madden said, to get a new bid from Henry Ford for the old Muscle Shoals project.

The Alabama Power Company today applied to Secretary of War Weeks for a new lease on steam plant number two at Muscle Shoals. Weeks announced that he would in reply state the willingness of the government to give the company a new lease under the same terms as the old one under which they now hold the plant and which is expiring.

Weeks stated that the government is paid a price of $250,000 a year for this plant under the present lease and that the lease is revokable at any time so that it would not hold up any general disposition of the Muscle Shoals project.

BRYAN DECLARES HE WOULD BE GLAD TO ACCEPT SENATE POST

Jacksonville, Fla., Nov. 5.—William Jennings Bryan will not be a candidate for governor of Florida, but if tendered a position in the United States senate would be "pleased to consider it in the light of the larger opportunities which such a position would present for service to my party and the country at large."

Mr. Bryan made known his attitude in a letter to Frank Drew of Live Oak, who had inquired whether he would accept the gubernatorial nomination.

MURDERER OF SCHOOL GIRL

BELIEVED HIDING IN DEPTHS OF A COAL MINE IN ALBERTA, CANADA

(By United Press)

Lethbridge, Albert, Nov. 5. — The murderer of pretty Winnie Tollerstrup, Raymond school girl, is hiding in the black depths of a coal mine, Royal Canadian mounted police believed today.

Joe Blackhorse, fullblood Indian, is suspected of the crime. He disappeared Friday after delivering a ton of coal to the Tollerstrup home near here.

Winnie, winsome 16 year old miss and beauty queen of the district, was alone at the farm when Blackhorse delivered the coal. Her father returned from town to find pools of blood about the house and his daughter's shattered wrist watch outside.

Neighbors later recalled having seen a haystack on Arthur Dahl's farm burning that afternoon. Buried eight feet deep in the smoking stack, they found the mutilated body of the little girl. The body was partly burned.

No trace was found of Blackhorse. He and four brothers ran the coal mine near Raymond. Search of the surrounding territory and the reservation revealed no trace of the Indian. Heavily armed mounted police, provincial police and citizens prepared to enter the depths of the mine, believing the Indian is hiding there.

PRESIDENT OF SOO LINE DIED IN MILL CITY

Minneapolis, Nov. 5.—George R. Huntington, aged 55, president of the Soo line, an outstanding official and executive of American railroads, and son of a railroad pioneer who piloted the first train into LaCrosse, Wis., in the days of woodburning engines, is dead at his home in Minneapolis.

Death overtook Mr. Huntington, a man who rose from the most insignificant position railroads have to offer, to that of president of one of the leading lines, at a moment when members of his family and business associates were rejoicing over what was believed to have been his rapid recovery from a two weeks' illness.

Oliver Mining Company Pays State $4,340,499.96

(By United Press)

St. Paul, Nov. 5. — The largest single check ever paid to the treasury of the State of Minnesota was entered today from the Oliver Iron Mine company—$4,340,499.96.

The amount covers the occupational tax imposed by the state, over which a long legal battle has been waged. The tax law was upheld by the supreme court.

Accompanying the check was a protest giving warning that the company intends to continue its fight against the tax.

Although the check was placed after the close of business Saturday, warrants were issued and the Oliver company saved $700 in interest between Saturday afternoon and Monday.

REP. MADDEN OF ILLINOIS IS THE AUTHOR OF PLAN

WANTS NEW POWER PLANT SIMILAR TO GORGAS PLANT RECENTLY SOLD

ITS BUILDING, SAYS MADDEN, WOULD GAIN A NEW BID FROM HENRY FORD

(By United Press)

Washington, Nov. 5.—President Coolidge today was urged by Representative Madden, Illinois, chairman of the house appropriations committee to support a plan to have the government build a new power plant at Muscle Shoals similar to the Gorgas plant recently sold to the Alabama Power company.

The project of building the new plant would be, Madden said, to get a new bid from Henry Ford for the old Muscle Shoals project.

The Alabama Power Company today applied to Secretary of War Weeks for a new lease on steam plant number two at Muscle Shoals. Weeks announced that he would in reply state the willingness of the government to give the company a new lease under the same terms as the old one under which they now hold the plant and which is expiring.

Weeks stated that the government is paid a price of $250,000 a year for this plant under the present lease and that the lease is revokable at any time so that it would not hold up any general disposition of the Muscle Shoals project.

Dairyman's Formula for Milk of Good Quality

"Feed, weed and breed" is the dairyman's magic formula for good milk, according to M. H. Keeney, dairy specialist of the New Jersey State Agricultural college, in a statement stressing the present market demand for cheaper milk.

"The market will not pay a big price for milk," writes Mr. Keeney, "so we dairymen must cut our production costs. The two factors controlling the economical production of milk are the adaptability of the cow for giving milk, judged by her conformation, and by the milk scales and the Babcock test, and the amount and kind of food taken. The feed bill is the largest direct expense, and the dairyman's high road to success lies in producing a unit of clean, wholesome milk for the least possible cost.

"The first essential for good milk is good cows, the other is proper feed and care—it may be summarized briefly in three words, feed, weed and breed. Silage and alfalfa hay are the best for cheap milk, and they are the best and cheapest roughage feeds. Every dairyman should have them and should follow these directions:

"Feed all the roughage a cow will clean up. Part of it should be a legume, such as clover or alfalfa.

"Keep a balanced ration.

"Give sufficient feed, such as silage or roots.

"Feed grain in accordance with milk production—for a Holstein or Ayrshire, approximately one pound of grain for each three pounds of milk. A variety of grains in the mixture is desirable.

"Feed and milk regularly.

"Give plenty of fresh water at all times.

"Give access to salt daily.

"Buy grain feeds on the basis of their protein and energy, not simply by the hundredweight."

Bred Heifers Are Often Best Buy for Dairyman

What age of heifer is the best buy is a question frequently asked of the New York state college of agriculture at Ithaca.

The men there who are giving thought to herd improvement explain the advantages and disadvantages in the purchase at all three of the ages, as baby calves, as yearlings, and as bred heifers.

Baby calves are cheaper and more easily shipped. However, they are somewhat less likely to live than older stock; and further, there is more uncertainty as to how they will develop.

With yearlings, the chances of living are better, and the type is more likely to be fixed, yet a long time still remains before they will be productive. But since yearling heifers may sell at a disadvantage, they may be a good purchase.

Bred heifers are frequently the best buy. They are developed as to size, and the possibilities for milk production can be estimated. Their mortality rate should be low; and the cost of carrying to production is slight. They may even be worth a slight premium where there is a good market for milk, and it is desired to establish a herd promptly.

Timothy Is Not Favored as Feed for Dairy Cows

Timothy hay is all too frequently fed to dairy cows. There is only one occasion when its use for this purpose can be developed—when the cows are to be dried off. Where dairy cattle are being fed and timothy hay is the only dry roughage available, it should be sold and clover or alfalfa purchased. Timothy is generally quoted on the central markets as high or even higher than the legume hays, and the dairyman can well afford to make the exchange even though he has the hauling to pay. The improvement obtained in production will be remarkable, and will generally mean all the difference between paying to keep the cows and allowing the cows to aid in supporting you.

Cleanliness Important in Production of Milk

Cleanliness is the most important factor in the production of clean wholesome milk. Much of the dirt and filth that gets into milk and produces deterioration, comes from improper methods of handling after being drawn.

However, brushing off the loose dirt and dust about the flanks and udder and wiping the udder with a dry cloth materially assists in lessening the danger of dirt getting into the milk at milking. Cows during the summer season, if stabled at night or confined to a yard, become more or less dirty about their rear quarters and should be well cleaned before being milked.

Calf Needs Much Care.

Very young dairy calves demand skillful attention in order to grow and develop to the best advantage. The three most important rules to observe in hand-feeding are: First, cleanliness; second, regularity; and third, proper proportioned ration.

Skim Milk for the Calf.

The skim milk should be continued until the calf is six months old, if possible; also provide the calf with peavine hay, or alfalfa hay after it is four weeks old.

Brainerd Girl Receives Flattering Criticism in Chicago "Music News"

Miss Doris Schmale, a former Brainerd girl, has received special mention in the "Music News," of Chicago, after a recital given in that city recently.

It was stated in this periodical that "Miss Schmale has a soprano voice of mezzo quality that is 'different,' and which will probably make her distinct among the mass of good sopranos who bless our city.

"Her recital was delightful from beginning to end. The first group of songs included 'Yesterday and Today,' by Spross; 'The Pine Tree,' by Salter; 'Breath of Sandalwood,' by Stricklund; and 'Take Joy Home,' by Basset. Three songs by Carpenter composed the second group.

"The third set, all by Mason, were beautifully done, especially 'Flower in the Crannied Wall.' Miss Schmales singing of Puccini's 'Vissi d'arte' was brilliant and expressive, and the last group, which was greatly varied, gave opportunity for wide expression. La Forge's 'Song of the Open,' which closed the program was sung with great spirit and enthusiasm."

Miss Schmale's friends in Brainerd are planning to arrange for a recital to be given here soon.

APPLY SULPHUR ON YOUR ECZEMA SKIN

Any breaking out of the skin, even fiery itching eczema, can be quickly overcome by applying Mentho-Sulphur, declares a noted skin specialist. CRITICISM OF THE SUPREME COURT

CRITICISM of the supreme court of the United States has resulted very largely from the five-to-four decisions of the court. Because of these decisions the people have come to ask why a measure passed by congress should be declared unconstitutional by a majority of one. When they are informed that the court should be given a certain respect, which is not yielded to congress, because the court is composed of carefully chosen justices whose duty it is to interpret the Constitution, they are led to consider the fact that all congressmen are pledged to respect the Constatution in their legislating, and by the five-to-four decisions on questions of constitutionality they are impressed that within the court itself there is no clear and pronounced appreciation of what is and what is not constitutional.

Because of such decisions, a wave of criticism of the supreme court, as it functions at present, is sweeping through the land and radical leaders are organizing this sentiment so that they may utilize it and bring about very pronounced changes in the modus operandi of the court. But, extreme though these may be, their attitude is no more extreme than that taken by those who would suppress any attempts to change the quantitative weight of the court's decisions. Even Senator Robert M. La Follette demands that, if a measure is declared unconstitutional by the court, a two-thirds vote of congress must be secured to pass the measure over the veto of the court. And yet the champions of the court as it is claim that it is utterly preposterous that anyone should ask that measures already enacted by congress shall be considered constitutional unless a two-thirds vote of the justices of the court is recorded as against its constitutionality.

One of the important questions before the public mind today is that of the degree of change that is to take place in the court's procedure. That some change will be made is almost certain, and the question arises as to whether it is wise to oppose sensible change which will leave to the court its present power, while demanding that in exerting that power decisions must be on the basis of six-to-three before a measure is declared unconstitutional, or whether through opposition to any change the champions of the court as it is are to open the way for extremists to divest it of the right to speak the final word on the constitutionality of legislation.

A daily newspaper with a large circulation in the state of Minnesota, in concluding an editorial supporting the court as it is, points out that a recent writer asserts that there have been but nine five-to-four decisions in the 134 years the court has existed. Those favoring a change, by which measures will not be overturned by such a narrow margin, will find comfort in such a statement for if this is true there is little reason for defending the five-to-four decisions. The fact that they are so uncommon is a splendid argument in favor of a six-to-three decision, for it proves that if this is demanded it will not interfere to any extent with the court whose decisions have been in the majority of cases decisions in which more than five justices have been on one side and less than four on the other. Therefore, if this is to be accepted as true, the point is taken out of the opposition to this demand.

The strength of the movement results from such decisions as that having to do with child labor, for the public finds it hard to understand why the five justices opposed to the constitutionality of such a moral reform would be accounted as so much more American and respectful of the Constitution than the four who voted on the other side.

Five-to-four decisions are responsible for the demand that a six-to-three ruling be introduced, and at this time, when people are investigating things for themselves, it is useless to set up the court as a fetish which must be reverenced whether its methods and decisions are or are not considered good by the American people. The people may not know law, but the people know what laws they want, and the people, though hindered for a while, get what they want in the end.

HENRY FORD'S CANDIDACY

UNITED STATES SENATOR JAMES COUZENS knows Henry Ford. He knows him through the intimacy of contact in business, having been one of the heads of the Ford Motor company and associated with Henry Ford long enough to make millions out of the Ford car. There are rumors that Senator Couzens and Henry Ford had a disagreement and that as a result of it Mr. Couzens, who later became senator—we suspect without Mr. Ford's help—left the Ford organization. But, however that may be, it cannot be denied that Senator Couzens knows about as much as is to be known of Henry Ford, and with this knowledge Senator Couzens does not think that the American people should elect Henry Ford president of the United States.

It is interesting that Senator Couzens should express such sentiments before the republican club in the city in which the Ford interests center. Detroit has more reason than any other city to appreciate the Ford automobile industry. What was, up to the time of the initiation of the Ford industry, a city without any very clearly defined future growth and prominence, has come to be one of the larger cities of the United States and the heart of the automobile manufacturing industry. And yet in this city the redoubtable senator said things that slighted Henry Ford.

It appears from this that a man who knows the automobile manufacturer as few men know him does not agree with those who think that this great industrialist should be president of the United States and that he concludes that the city in which the Ford interests center is a good place in which to say so. It is probable that Henry Ford is much more popular away from home than he is at home. He once appeared before the Michigan people as a candidate for election as senator and he was defeated by a man whose personal appeal was not at all strong and who was elected, despite the fact that his primary campaign expenditures were used by the opposition to help elect Mr. Ford. The fact that later Senator Newberry withdrew from congress has nothing to do with this point, which is that, although his enormous expenditures were announced to the people of the state of Michigan, the people of that state elected him in preference to Henry Ford and in spite of the denunciation he received because of his expenditures.

It is true that later Senator Newberry resigned and that in the last election Woodbridge Ferris defeated the strong republican candidate, Senator Townsend, who was up for re-election, but that followed an investigation of Truman Newberry's campaign expenditures which brought unenviable notoriety to the state of Michigan.

In a word those who know Henry Ford best think that he is all right where he is, engaged in making automobiles and tractors and planning for an extension of his manufacturing interests. Within these interests he is a great man but outside of them he is sometimes ridiculous.

FRANCE AND HER AFRICAN TROOPS

THE consequences of training African troops in the methods of modern warfare cannot be predicted. The white man has been able to check rebellions of the black races through the advantage he has had because the black rebels were not trained in the methods of modern warfare. By the present policy of the French government millions of these will be trained in modern military movements and the uses of the weapons of modern warfare. With such training, and given military supplies, the white man may find himself in desperate straits.

However, at this time, the use of African troops by France raises the question as to the value of the League of Nations as an instrument for checking national activities that are not sanctioned by other civilized peoples. The world was surprised when Premier Poincare announced that France is no longer a nation of forty millions but one of a hundred millions and that this increase is due to calling in African troops to redress the balance of Europe. Because there is a provision in the League of Nations covenant which expressly forbids the use of troops from mandated territories, except for police duties within such territories, the world had expected that the use of black troops in Europe was at an end, except that troops from pre-war colonies might be used. Therefore, the surprise resulting from M. Poincare's announcement.

When the astonishment had given rise to questions it was found that the "Supreme Council" of the league had given permission to France to use such troops, and that this applied to France alone which secured an exception before signing the treaty. Britain and Belgium and other powers are bound by the treaty to respect the provision prohibiting the use of troops from territories which came to them by mandate. The world wonders how many exceptions of ths kind will be discovered and where the leaders of other peoples were when such concessions were given to France.

Such facts, when brought to light, result in a loss of respect for the League of Nations. If certain parts of the treaty, written into it to safeguard the best interests of those signing it and of the world, are to be scrapped at the request of one nation which would violate a principle that others hold, there is little to be gained from noble but futile treaties. Anglo-Saxons will continue to believe that the use of black troops in the white man's game is about as dangerous as training players in the strategy of one team to send them forth to play against those who taught them the game. French politics seems to be about as far-sighted as German politics during the World war.

IN the past few months when it hasn't been the Stillmans it has been the Stokes couple who have been in the limelight. And on such cases the less light the better.

THE railroads have refused to reduce their rates on grain shipments. The railroads are playing into the hands of their enemies and are unconcerned.

RED CROSS MET TEST IN JAPAN FUND DRIVE

Spirit of Service Demonstrated in Readiness for Nation-wide Activity.

When President Coolidge by proclamation designated the American Red Cross as the medium through which contributions for relief of the Japanese earthquake sufferers should flow, the President's desire came as an order to the Red Cross. Immediately the entire machinery of the organization was put in motion and within 24 hours the fund campaign was moving with vigor in every part of the country.

This emergency test demonstrated the peacetime readiness of the Red Cross to cope with stupendous tasks in behalf of humanity. Within a month it had collected upwards of $10,250,000 in contributions, landed ten cargoes of supplies at Japanese ports and was keeping pace with relief requirements—all without a single dollar of the fund being spent for administration.

President Coolidge, in expressing his thanks to the people, said: "When the news of the tragedy in Japan first reached us, the American Red Cross, pursuant to a proclamation, asked the country for $5,000,000 to meet the great emergency. The answer to this appeal was prompt and generous; in less than two weeks a sum far in excess of the original goal was given."

The work of the Red Cross for Japan is expected to influence a very large enrollment of new recruits during the Roll Call, which starts Armistice Day.

CRITICISM OF THE SUPREME COURT

CRITICISM of the supreme court of the United States has resulted very largely from the five-to-four decisions of the court. Because of these decisions the people have come to ask why a measure passed by congress should be declared unconstitutional by a majority of one. When they are informed that the court should be given a certain respect, which is not yielded to congress, because the court is composed of carefully chosen justices whose duty it is to interpret the Constitution, they are led to consider the fact that all congressmen are pledged to respect the Constatution in their legislating, and by the five-to-four decisions on questions of constitutionality they are impressed that within the court itself there is no clear and pronounced appreciation of what is and what is not constitutional.

Because of such decisions, a wave of criticism of the supreme court, as it functions at present, is sweeping through the land and radical leaders are organizing this sentiment so that they may utilize it and bring about very pronounced changes in the modus operandi of the court. But, extreme though these may be, their attitude is no more extreme than that taken by those who would suppress any attempts to change the quantitative weight of the court's decisions. Even Senator Robert M. La Follette demands that, if a measure is declared unconstitutional by the court, a two-thirds vote of congress must be secured to pass the measure over the veto of the court. And yet the champions of the court as it is claim that it is utterly preposterous that anyone should ask that measures already enacted by congress shall be considered constitutional unless a two-thirds vote of the justices of the court is recorded as against its constitutionality.

One of the important questions before the public mind today is that of the degree of change that is to take place in the court's procedure. That some change will be made is almost certain, and the question arises as to whether it is wise to oppose sensible change which will leave to the court its present power, while demanding that in exerting that power decisions must be on the basis of six-to-three before a measure is declared unconstitutional, or whether through opposition to any change the champions of the court as it is are to open the way for extremists to divest it of the right to speak the final word on the constitutionality of legislation.

A daily newspaper with a large circulation in the state of Minnesota, in concluding an editorial supporting the court as it is, points out that a recent writer asserts that there have been but nine five-to-four decisions in the 134 years the court has existed. Those favoring a change, by which measures will not be overturned by such a narrow margin, will find comfort in such a statement for if this is true there is little reason for defending the five-to-four decisions. The fact that they are so uncommon is a splendid argument in favor of a six-to-three decision, for it proves that if this is demanded it will not interfere to any extent with the court whose decisions have been in the majority of cases decisions in which more than five justices have been on one side and less than four on the other. Therefore, if this is to be accepted as true, the point is taken out of the opposition to this demand.

The strength of the movement results from such decisions as that having to do with child labor, for the public finds it hard to understand why the five justices opposed to the constitutionality of such a moral reform would be accounted as so much more American and respectful of the Constitution than the four who voted on the other side.

Five-to-four decisions are responsible for the demand that a six-to-three ruling be introduced, and at this time, when people are investigating things for themselves, it is useless to set up the court as a fetish which must be reverenced whether its methods and decisions are or are not considered good by the American people. The people may not know law, but the people know what laws they want, and the people, though hindered for a while, get what they want in the end.

HENRY FORD'S CANDIDACY

UNITED STATES SENATOR JAMES COUZENS knows Henry Ford. He knows him through the intimacy of contact in business, having been one of the heads of the Ford Motor company and associated with Henry Ford long enough to make millions out of the Ford car. There are rumors that Senator Couzens and Henry Ford had a disagreement and that as a result of it Mr. Couzens, who later became senator—we suspect without Mr. Ford's help—left the Ford organization. But, however that may be, it cannot be denied that Senator Couzens knows about as much as is to be known of Henry Ford, and with this knowledge Senator Couzens does not think that the American people should elect Henry Ford president of the United States.

It is interesting that Senator Couzens should express such sentiments before the republican club in the city in which the Ford interests center. Detroit has more reason than any other city to appreciate the Ford automobile industry. What was, up to the time of the initiation of the Ford industry, a city without any very clearly defined future growth and prominence, has come to be one of the larger cities of the United States and the heart of the automobile manufacturing industry. And yet in this city the redoubtable senator said things that slighted Henry Ford.

It appears from this that a man who knows the automobile manufacturer as few men know him does not agree with those who think that this great industrialist should be president of the United States and that he concludes that the city in which the Ford interests center is a good place in which to say so. It is probable that Henry Ford is much more popular away from home than he is at home. He once appeared before the Michigan people as a candidate for election as senator and he was defeated by a man whose personal appeal was not at all strong and who was elected, despite the fact that his primary campaign expenditures were used by the opposition to help elect Mr. Ford. The fact that later Senator Newberry withdrew from congress has nothing to do with this point, which is that, although his enormous expenditures were announced to the people of the state of Michigan, the people of that state elected him in preference to Henry Ford and in spite of the denunciation he received because of his expenditures.

It is true that later Senator Newberry resigned and that in the last election Woodbridge Ferris defeated the strong republican candidate, Senator Townsend, who was up for re-election, but that followed an investigation of Truman Newberry's campaign expenditures which brought unenviable notoriety to the state of Michigan.

In a word those who know Henry Ford best think that he is all right where he is, engaged in making automobiles and tractors and planning for an extension of his manufacturing interests. Within these interests he is a great man but outside of them he is sometimes ridiculous.

FRANCE AND HER AFRICAN TROOPS

THE consequences of training African troops in the methods of modern warfare cannot be predicted. The white man has been able to check rebellions of the black races through the advantage he has had because the black rebels were not trained in the methods of modern warfare. By the present policy of the French government millions of these will be trained in modern military movements and the uses of the weapons of modern warfare. With such training, and given military supplies, the white man may find himself in desperate straits.

However, at this time, the use of African troops by France raises the question as to the value of the League of Nations as an instrument for checking national activities that are not sanctioned by other civilized peoples. The world was surprised when Premier Poincare announced that France is no longer a nation of forty millions but one of a hundred millions and that this increase is due to calling in African troops to redress the balance of Europe. Because there is a provision in the League of Nations covenant which expressly forbids the use of troops from mandated territories, except for police duties within such territories, the world had expected that the use of black troops in Europe was at an end, except that troops from pre-war colonies might be used. Therefore, the surprise resulting from M. Poincare's announcement.

When the astonishment had given rise to questions it was found that the "Supreme Council" of the league had given permission to France to use such troops, and that this applied to France alone which secured an exception before signing the treaty. Britain and Belgium and other powers are bound by the treaty to respect the provision prohibiting the use of troops from territories which came to them by mandate. The world wonders how many exceptions of ths kind will be discovered and where the leaders of other peoples were when such concessions were given to France.

Such facts, when brought to light, result in a loss of respect for the League of Nations. If certain parts of the treaty, written into it to safeguard the best interests of those signing it and of the world, are to be scrapped at the request of one nation which would violate a principle that others hold, there is little to be gained from noble but futile treaties. Anglo-Saxons will continue to believe that the use of black troops in the white man's game is about as dangerous as training players in the strategy of one team to send them forth to play against those who taught them the game. French politics seems to be about as far-sighted as German politics during the World war.

BOY SCOUT MEMORIAL

Finely Arranged and Well Rendered Program Given at First Congregational Church

IN MEMORY OF PRES. HARDING

Special Emphasis Laid on Late President's Estimate of Scout Work

A very appreciative audience listened to a finely arranged and well rendered program at the First Congregational church Friday evening, when the local Boy Scout Council presented a boy scout memorial in memory of the late President Warren G. Harding.

The various talks, made by the boys themselves, covered the life of President Harding from his birth to his untimely death, and giving outlines of his illustrious careet. Special emphasis was made of his estimate of Boy Scout work, in which the late president found a real interest and was ever ready to go out of his way if need be to participate in scouting activities.

Rev. L. F. Strothman, scout master of troop No. 3, of Northeast Brainerd, gave an excellent address on character building and citizenship ideals of scouting.

"An Impression" written by Joe Mitchell Chapple, distinguished writer of Washington, D. C., who was with the funeral train from San Francisco to Marion, was read by William Zakariasen, assistant scoutmaster of Troop No. 2. This is a wonderful tribute to the boy of today to whom on the morrow, we shall have to look for future presidents.

This scout memorial was a national tribute to a friend and brother, for Harding had been made a tenderfoot scout, and had on his stay in Seattle just before leaving for Alaska, renewed his obligation as a scout before an immense scout gathering. Approximately half a million scouts in the United States with their leaders held similar exercises to the one presented in Brainerd on Friday evening this particular day being chosen because it was the 58th anniversary of Harding's birth.

Another year will see thousands of scouts in an annual pilgrimage to the shrine of their beloved commander-in-chief at Marion, Ohio.

Following is the program carried out Friday evening.

The opening meeting of the free lecture course was held last evening with a fine attendance of thinking people. The community song service led by Evangelist Aalborg was entered into by all those present with real hearty enthusiasm. The old songs of Zion rang out with old time good cheer. The old favorite "There were Ninety and Nine" was illustrated by stereopticon slides.

Evangelist M. E. Anderson spoke with great freedom on the subject, "Brainerd's Greatest Need." He carried his audience with him as he spoke of world conditions in the days of Sodom, in the days of the flood, in the days of Christ, and now in our own times. He said in part, "The greatest need of Brainerd tonight is that preparation of heart that the God of heaven requires to meet the impending crisis before us.'

BOY SCOUT MEMORIAL

Finely Arranged and Well Rendered Program Given at First Congregational Church

IN MEMORY OF PRES. HARDING

Special Emphasis Laid on Late President's Estimate of Scout Work

A very appreciative audience listened to a finely arranged and well rendered program at the First Congregational church Friday evening, when the local Boy Scout Council presented a boy scout memorial in memory of the late President Warren G. Harding.

The various talks, made by the boys themselves, covered the life of President Harding from his birth to his untimely death, and giving outlines of his illustrious career. Special emphasis was made of his estimate of Boy Scout work, in which the late president found a real interest and was ever ready to go out of his way if need be to participate in scouting activities.

Rev. L. F. Strothman, scout master of troop No. 3, of Northeast Brainerd, gave an excellent address on character building and citizenship ideals of scouting.

"An Impression" written by Joe Mitchell Chapple, distinguished writer of Washington, D. C., who was with the funeral train from San Francisco to Marion, was read by William Zakariasen, assistant scoutmaster of Troop No. 2. This is a wonderful tribute to the boy of today to whom on the morrow, we shall have to look for future presidents.

This scout memorial was a national tribute to a friend and brother, for Harding had been made a tenderfoot scout, and had on his stay in Seattle just before leaving for Alaska, renewed his obligation as a scout before an immense scout gathering. Approximately half a million scouts in the United States with their leaders held similar exercises to the one presented in Brainerd on Friday evening this particular day being chosen because it was the 58th anniversary of Harding's birth.

Another year will see thousands of scouts in an annual pilgrimage to the shrine of their beloved commander-in-chief at Marion, Ohio.

Following is the program carried out Friday evening.

Assembly—Organ, "How Firm a Foundation," Mrs. Louise Knudsen.
Arrival of Troops, audience remain seated, All sing Hymn No. 182.
Announcement of Purpose of Meeting, E. W. Stimble, Scout Executive Crow Wing County.
"Lead Kindly Light"—entire audience standing, Hymn No. 147.
The Character Building and Citizenship Ideals of Scouting, L. F. Strothman, S. M. Troop 3.
Time, Place and Home Conditions Surrounding the Birth of W. G. Harding, Scout Stewart Gile, Troop 5.
Boyhood Occupations and Personal Characteristics, Scout Eugene Nicholson, Troop 1.
His Business Career, Scout John Ellison, Troop 1.
Facts of His Political Career, Scout Clarence Wooden, Troop 3.
"Abide With Me" solo, Dr. A. K. Cohen.
President Harding's Ideals and Effort Toward World-Wide Good-Will, Scout William Johnstone, Troop 5.
His Estimate Of and Participation in the Boy Scout Movement, Scout Lloyd Whitlock, Troop 4.
The Character and Purpose of His Alaskan Trip, Scout Merle Storm, Troop 3.
The Chief Facts of His Death and Funeral, Scout Carl Peterson, Troop 1.

SPORTS

PLAYING MANAGERS ARE COMING BACK

By HENRY L. FARRELL
United Press Sports Editor

New York, Nov. 5.—Not so long ago the Cleveland Indians were considered exceptional, in that they were led by Tris Speaker, a playing manager.

Immediately preceding the appointment of Speaker, which was considered a sort of experiment by the Indians, the bench manager had been the vogue through the theory that the responsibilities of management were too much to impose upon a player, who, in the modern game, has much to do to handle his own fielding job.

Speaker proved to the satisfaction of all that a good player can remain a good player and manage a club as well, providing that the player has the same qualifications to manage a team as he has to play.

Detroit tried the experiment with success when Ty Cobb was appointed to manage the Tigers. Cobb has not succeeded in winning a pennant, but he did as well as any bench manager could in landing the Tigers in the first division last year.

With two such examples to disprove the former theory that double duties were too heavy for a player, and with the obvious savings on the payroll that would result from a player-manager, other major league clubs may go back to the custom that prevailed when bench managers were the big exception.

With Kid Gleason retired as the manager of the Chicago White Sox, Eddie Collins, no doubt, will be placed at the head of the club, and Collins ought to make good as a manager. He has been one of the game's greatest players and one of the smartest players and he has the qualifications of a leader. Collins want to take a whirl at handling a club and it is only natural that he should, if he wants to remain in baseball after his active days have passed.

Last winter he was considered as a future manager of the New York Yankees. At that time, although he had been assured of his job, there was some talk that Miller Huggins was going to retire from the Yanks. The talk of a trade with the White Sox for Collins was later dropped.

George Burns is being rumored as the successor of Fred Mitchell as manager of the Boston Braves and the acquisition of the Cincinnati outfielder would bring about another player-manager. Burns also should make a good manager, although some good baseball judges believe that he is too quiet and modest to become a successful leader. Burns knows baseball from long association with McGraw and from his experiences under Pat Moran. He is popular with the players and a great player himself.

When Burns was with the Giants he was called "Pious George," because of his quiet, unassuming ways on the field. However, it does not follow that he would not be a good manager because he is such a thorough gentleman.

Connie Mack has never been a fire-spouter, and McGraw, the personification of the driver, is the only manager in the game who has been more successful than Mack.

FOOTBALL RESULTS

Notre Dame Wins Again

Notre Dame, Ind., Nov. 5.—Don Miller accounted for another overwhelming Notre Dame victory—his third in three weeks—when he ran wild in Notre Dame's 34-7 triumph over Purdue in the annual Irish homecoming game. Miller scored two touchdowns, made four runs of better than 25 yards, gained 50 yards after receiving passes and took another 30 yard pass which was not allowed when the play was called back.

Princeton's football team found itself and completely smothered the little Quaker eleven from Swarthmore college by a score of 37 to 6.

Beloit beat Knox by a score of 6 to 5.

Red Grange led the Illini to a 7 to 0 win over the Maroons.

Hanover took a mud bath at the hands of Indiana, 32 to 0.

Cornell beat Dartmouth, 32 to 7.

The Wolverine's great defensive play turned back Iowa and held a 9 to 3 margin to the end.

North Dakota U pounded a 12 to 6 win over S. D. State.

St. Thomas smashed its way to a 19 to 14 victory over St. Olaf.

Michigan Defeats Iowa

Iowa City, Ia., Nov. 5.—Hurry Up Yost and his Michigan football machine still are a big factor in the western conference gridiron title race. The fighting Wolverine eleven locked a death grip on the University of Iowa's throat in the first quarter Saturday and then hung on to the final whistle for a 9 to 3 victory over the Hawkeyes. It was a great battle, one of those bruising, crashing contests with the Iowans battling desperately to retrieve lost ground and the Wolverines fighting with determination to defend their six points margin of victory. Threats to score there were plenty but on each occasion the defending, threatened team managed to ward off their opponents from scoring.

DAZZLING RUNS BY MARTINEAU, GRAHAM

Minneapolis, Nov. 5—Fighting like Tigers, after being scored on in the first 15 seconds of play, Minnesota on Saturday displayed a powerful attack that would not be denied, and won from Northwestern 34 to 14 on Northrop field.

Led by the dazzling open field running of Captain Earl Martineau, and Malcolm Graham, coupled with Ray Eklund's uncanny skill in snatching aerial shots and the wonderful improvement in the team's play, the Gophers today rank as one of the west's leading elevens.

Captain Earl Martineau played the greatest game of his career. Five times the Gopher leader ripped off long gains ranging from 23 to 51 yards. It was his return of the kickoff after the Purple had scored in the first period that paved the way for Minnesota's opening tally. He scored two of the five touchdowns by skirting the ends, passed accurately, kicked well and backed up the line in grand style.

GRAY HAIR BECOMES DARK AND BEAUTIFUL

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients, at very little cost. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.—Advt.

PLAYING MANAGERS ARE COMING BACK

By HENRY L. FARRELL
United Press Sports Editor

New York, Nov. 5.—Not so long ago the Cleveland Indians were considered exceptional, in that they were led by Tris Speaker, a playing manager.

Immediately preceding the appointment of Speaker, which was considred a sort of experiment by the Indians, the bench manager had been the vogue through the theory that the responsibilities of management were too much to impose upon a player, who, in the modern game, has much to do to handle his own fielding job.

Speaker proved to the satisfaction of all that a good player can remain a good player and manage a club as well, providing that the player has the same qualifications to manage a team as he has to play.

Detroit tried the experiment with success when Ty Cobb was appointed to manage the Tigers. Cobb has not succeeded in winning a pennant, but he did as well as any bench manager could in landing the Tigers in the first division last year.

With two such examples to disprove the former theory that double duties were too heavy for a player, and with the obvious savings on the payroll that would result from a player-manager, other major league clubs may go back to the custom that prevailed when bench managers were the big exception.

With Kid Gleason retired as the manager of the Chicago White Sox, Eddie Collins, no doubt, will be placed at the head of the club, and Collins ought to make good as a manager. He has been one of the game's greatest players and one of the smartest players and he has the qualifications of a leader. Collins want to take a whirl at handling a club and it is only natural that he should, if he wants to remain in baseball after his active days have passed.

Last winter he was considered as a future manager of the New York Yankees. At that time, although he had been assured of his job, there was some talk that Miller Huggins was going to retire from the Yanks. The talk of a trade with the White Sox for Collins was later dropped.

George Burns is being rumored as the successor of Fred Mitchell as manager of the Boston Braves and the acquisition of the Cincinnati outfielder would bring about another player-manager. Burns also should make a good manager, although some good baseball judges believe that he is too quiet and modest to become a successful leader. Burns knows baseball from long association with McGraw and from his experiences under Pat Moran. He is popular with the players and a great player himself.

When Burns was with the Giants he was called "Pious George," because of his quiet, unassuming ways on the field. However, it does not follow that he would not be a good manager because he is such a thorough gentleman.

Connie Mack has never been a fire-spouter, and McGraw, the personification of the driver, is the only manager in the game who has been more successful than Mack.
